4) What do you love about Campbell County?

As a native and lifelong resident of the first district, I love Campbell County. There is a lot to do and enjoy in Campbell County, from the mountains to the lake. Most importantly, though, I love the people—everyone is like family. There is a lot that the state and nation as a whole can learn from Campbell County. It has been my experience in Campbell County that arguments can and do become heated, but at the end of the day, we all come together and try to do what is best for Campbell County.

5) What is one thing you would work to change about Campbell County if elected?

If re-elected, I want to continue working to improve Campbell County. For me public service is not a career path; rather, it is a calling to serve and improve our community. Two areas where improvements have been made but for which I want to continue building off, are infrastructure improvements and workforce development. As it relates to infrastructure, we have improved access to water and internet, but more improvements are needed, and I am currently working on an initiative at the state level to try to generate approximately $500,000 annually for infrastructure improvements. As it relates to workforce development, efforts have been made to increase the number of career fairs, and the County is presently working on a grant to develop industrial land. It is my hope that with additional work on this initiative, we will come closer to making it possible for everyone who wants to live, work, and raise a family in Campbell County to have that opportunity.
